Alexandria Gazette 748. v. Hole.

SATURDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 1

A COLORADO WINTER .- On the 10th of Dacember we had a storm, clearing up next day, leaving about five or six inches of scow on a level which has remained frezen ever since .--There has not been a night for twenty-five days but what the mercury has been below zero, ranging most of the time from six to to twenty below, and none of this time through the days has the mercury been above freezing ponit, most of the time ranging from six to twenty above during the day, and I fear the end is not yet.— When one looks out and sees cattle roaming over the prairie pawing snow for their feed and bears their mournful lowing, and for one to be located on a sheep ranch forty miles from Denver, and to be dragged through the snow on wheels tipe miles to get a few greeries and the Republican to read, and to see his sheep pawing snow to get something to eat until their legs are lame, and to think one has come here in search of health as I have, and can stand all these things he can stand any climate. Of course we hope for better weath er, and as long as we are blessed with good appetites, shall continue to dispose of antelope and jack rabbits in the usual manner. We thick even Father Meeker must have repented by this time of making the suggestion in one of his letters to the unemployed, "to come out here, buy a cow, sit down and wait and he would seen have a business of his own." I am afraid the poor cow never would come home, even to die .- Cor. Springfield Republican.
